

10 Questions to Ask Before You Commit to a Kitchen Renovation

How do I know my kitchen will be designed around my lifestyle, not just the space?

We have been in and out of hundreds of homes over the last 40 years, and one thing is always true: no two kitchens are ever used the same way. Some families cook three hot meals a day, others live off the microwave. Some kitchens are the social hub where everyone gathers, others are quiet spaces used by just one or two.

The mistake we see too often is a design that looks good on paper but does not fit real life. You end up walking miles every day between the fridge and sink, or forever shifting appliances off the worktop just to make space to chop vegetables. That is the kind of frustration you do not want to live with for the next 20 years.

At Adamsons, we start by asking about you - not just your room measurements. Do you host? Do you bake? Do you need somewhere for the children to do homework while you cook? Once we understand how you actually live in the space, we can create a design that flows properly. We have done it so many times before, and we know the difference it makes: a kitchen that feels effortless, because it works in harmony with your life.

What should I expect to budget - and how do I avoid nasty surprises later?

Money is always the elephant in the room. Over the years we have seen too many projects where the budget was blown on building works, leaving little left for the kitchen itself. The result is compromise - the cheaper worktop, the appliance you did not really want, or the storage that never quite works.

The truth is, a well-planned kitchen will last you 20 years or more. Stretching to get what you really want now often saves money in the long run, because you will not be left replacing or upgrading halfway through.

With Adamsons, costs are transparent. From the first design we outline exactly what is included, from cabinetry to appliances to fitting. Because we manage the whole job, there are no hidden extras later. You know where you stand from day one.

Our Value Proposition...

We take care of everything from start to finish, a complete service that turns dreams into reality, delivering outstanding results on time, on budget and with a minimum of fuss.

OUR FIXED PRICE

Will the company manage the entire installation process, including electrics, plumbing, and finishing?

This is where projects often unravel. We have been called in more than once to fix kitchens where the builder, electrician and installer all had different plans. Services were in the wrong place, plastering had been done too soon, and appliances did not fit where they were meant to go. It is stressful and expensive for the homeowner.

When you choose Adamsons, you are choosing one team to take responsibility for the whole job. Design, ordering, plumbing, electrics, installation, finishing - it is all under one roof. That way, nothing gets lost in translation. It is smoother for you, and the finished kitchen looks exactly as it was designed.

How do I choose appliances that fit my kitchen and my cooking habits without overspending?

Appliances are one of the biggest areas where people either overspend or underspend. We have seen clients with top-of-the-range steam ovens that never got used, and others with bargain dishwashers that packed up within two years.

At Adamsons, appliances are never an afterthought. We talk about how you cook and what you use every day. From there, we recommend models that are reliable, efficient and make sense for your budget. Because the appliances are planned into the design, everything fits where it should and works as part of the whole kitchen.

Only you know what you want from your home, but whatever you wish for, we can make it happen.

What is the right balance between style and long-term functionality?

Trends come and go. We have seen open shelving, handleless gloss, bright colours and industrial steel all have their moment. Some age gracefully, others less so. The regret we hear most often is from people who chased a look but forgot about practicality.

We believe kitchens should last for decades, so our designs always weigh form against function. That does not mean dull - it means choosing finishes that wear well, storage that makes sense, and layouts that are easy to live with. A kitchen can be beautiful and timeless without being bland. We have been finding that balance for families for over 40 years.

How do I make the most of storage and workspace so my kitchen works every day?

Storage and worktops are the most argued about parts of a kitchen. We see it all the time. Too few cupboards and you end up with clutter on the worktop. Too much storage in the wrong places and you are forever bending down or reaching too high.

The trick is thinking about how you actually move around the kitchen. Where will you prep? Where do you make tea? Do you want the microwave out or hidden? At Adamsons we design with these questions in mind. Pans near the hob, mugs near the kettle, and enough workspace to cook without juggling pans. It sounds simple, but it makes the difference between a kitchen that frustrates you and one that makes life easier.

We support you all the way.

With a deep respect for you and your home, our team supports you every step of the way as we transform your space.

How long will it take from design to finished kitchen, and how will I be kept informed?

Timeframes matter. We have met people who thought their kitchen would be done in a month and were still cooking off a camping stove three months later. Building projects are complex, and if you do not have a clear schedule you end up with stress and delays.

We are upfront from the start. Once your design is agreed, we give you a timeline for every stage - from ordering to fitting to finishing touches. We keep you updated throughout, so you are never left guessing. Kitchens are big investments, and the last thing you want is to be left in the dark.

What happens if something goes wrong after installation?

This is where a lot of companies disappear. Once the last cabinet is screwed in and the final payment clears, you are on your own. We have met homeowners who told us their installer stopped returning calls the moment the job was done.

That is not how we work. At Adamsons, our Customer for Life promise means you are never left stranded. If something needs adjusting six months down the line, we are there. If an appliance develops a fault, we will help get it sorted.

We have been back to homes we fitted 10, 15, even 20 years ago. Sometimes it is a small fix, sometimes it is a refresh. Either way, our customers know they can pick up the phone and we will still be here. That peace of mind is part of the reason so many of our reviews mention not just the quality of the kitchen, but the support afterwards.

OUR AFTERCARE SERVICE

Our Responsiveness...

We are agile and adaptable, always quick to respond. With our lean management structure, we make speedy decisions and take prompt action.

How can I be sure the quality matches the investment?

Kitchens are not cheap. It is natural to wonder if what you are buying is really worth the money. We have walked into homes where cut-price kitchens looked tired within five years. Cheap hinges, thin worktops, drawers that did not quite run straight. The owners always say the same thing - they wish they had invested properly at the start.

Adamsons kitchens are built to last. We only use suppliers we trust, materials that stand up to daily use, and installers who take pride in their work. That is why we are proud to put our name on every project. Our reviews and repeat customers speak for themselves - quality pays for itself over time.

We give you peace of mind.

We believe in being clear and open, and giving you real peace of mind. The price we quote is the price you pay, it's fixed and won't change as the project progresses.

We take care of everything

Our full end-to-end service makes transforming your home as simple and straightforward as it possibly can be.

Why should I trust one company to handle everything instead of piecing it together myself?

It is tempting to think you will save money by mixing and matching - buy the cabinets from one place, get a local fitter, order appliances online. We have seen it before, and more often than not it ends up costing more. Things do not fit, delivery dates clash, warranties fall through the gaps. The homeowner ends up stuck in the middle.

When you choose Adamsons, you are choosing a single, accountable partner. We design, supply, install and look after you long afterwards. One contract, one schedule, one team to call. It is easier, it is safer, and it gives you the kitchen you wanted without the hassle. That is why so many families in the North West trust us.
